

Special Advertising Section

Attorneys Roland F. Young III and James M. Tanski (third and fourth from left in back row) surrounded by several of the firm's attorneys.

O'BRIEN
TANSKI
& YOUNG LLP

CityPlace II
Hartford, CT 06103
860-525-2700
www.otylaw.com

All O'Brien, Tanski & Young attorneys concentrate on professional liability litigation.

Areas of concentration:

General Litigation

James M. Tanski, J.D.; Robert D. Silva, J.D.; Albert G. Danker, Jr., P.A., J.D.; Amy F. Goodusky, J.D.; Gina L. Glockner, J.D.

Healthcare Law, Credentialing

Roland F. Young III, J.D.; Melinda S. Monson, R.N., J.D.

Appellate Work

Michael G. Rigg, J.D.; Donna R. Zito, J.D.; Stephen V. Manning, J.D.*

DPH investigations

Roland F. Young III, J.D.; Melinda S. Monson, R.N., J.D.; Hilary Fisher Nelson, J.D.; Robert D. Silva, J.D.; Nancy P. Tyler, J.D.; Donna R. Zito, J.D.

White Collar Crime

Stephen V. Manning, J.D.*; Rebecca M. Harris, J.D.

* Also a member of Massachusetts Bar

 Also a member of the New York Bar

Healthcare Litigators, Like Minds

To O'Brien, Tanski & Young, the Medical Field Is Second Nature

As co-managing partner of O'Brien, Tanski & Young LLP, attorney Roland F. Young III takes pride in the renown, respect and success this small group of 13 attorneys has worked hard to earn. On paper, the firm has all the marks of a leader: Martindale Hubbell's highest "AV" rating, designating the firm among the nation's top 2 percent; more than 230 years' collective experience in professional liability litigation (more than 30 of which belong to co-managing partner James

One area of sustained growth for the firm has been the defense of white collar criminal investigations.

Tanski); and favorable verdicts in approximately 90 percent of the cases it takes to trial. In practice, the firm is a commanding presence in the courtroom and a formidable ally in high-stakes healthcare matters.

"In the areas of health care and medical malpractice, we have one of the highest concentrations of attorneys in the state," Young says. "Some have taught college courses, practiced as a nurse or a physician assistant in an emergency setting, served as assistant U.S. attorney handling complex healthcare fraud and appellate matters, or taken time off to study medicine. With our unique backgrounds and common focus, we have a large-firm mentality in our scope of practice."

Litigators Who Know the Industry

Young describes O'Brien, Tanski & Young as a "litigation healthcare firm," which, he believes, is an important distinction in the legal profession.

"For most litigation firms, professional liability matters constitute a small percentage of the overall case load," Young explains. "In contrast, we are seasoned litigators dedicated to serving the healthcare industry. Some of our attorneys have attended medical procedures in order to better understand how to present a successful defense. We have exceptional resources, including a comprehensive expert databank for litigation support. For many years, we have successfully defended healthcare professionals in high-stakes lawsuits, including medical malpractice, credentialing matters and white collar crime."

Handling Full Spectrum of Provider Needs

While professional liability litigation is its mainstay, O'Brien, Tanski & Young handles many types of healthcare-related matters. The firm represents private physician practices, insurance carriers and two-thirds of Connecticut's acute care hospitals in matters related to Department of Public Health licensure, risk management, policies and procedures, mediation, and arbitration, among others. O'Brien, Tanski & Young thoroughly understands hospitals' and physician practices' operations — "a degree of insight," adds Young, "that is not at all common."